

PROSPETTO SUD

This architectural floor plan illustrates the second floor of the 'Haus der Kunst' building. The layout is characterized by a central corridor and a large hall on the left. The right side of the plan features a series of rooms, including a large hall and several smaller rooms. The drawing uses black lines for walls and columns, with some areas shaded in gray to indicate specific materials or structures. The overall design is functional and modern, reflecting the architectural style of the building.

This architectural section drawing illustrates a multi-story building. The left side shows a large, open space, possibly a lobby or atrium, with a blue line indicating a structural element. The central part of the drawing shows three levels of seating areas, each with four seats. The right side of the drawing shows a hatched area, likely representing a wall or a different material. The drawing is a technical representation of a building's internal structure and layout.

This architectural section drawing illustrates a multi-story building. The left side shows a vertical section with three levels of interior spaces, each containing rectangular elements representing furniture or equipment. The middle section shows a similar vertical section with three levels, also containing rectangular elements. The right side of the drawing is a large, rectangular area filled with diagonal hatching, representing a solid mass or a different material. The drawing is composed of clean, black lines on a white background.

